ABOUT—

#MHWBrighton with a twist

Despite our hopes that we would be able to hold some face-to-face elements, ongoing covid-19 restrictions, the 2nd International Conference on the Mental Health & Wellbeing of Postgraduate Researchers is fully online.

While this does mean we'll miss out on socially distanced ice-creams on Brighton beach in the glorious spring sunshine, the online format enables us to offer more sessions, across a greater number of days.

Delivered via Zoom, the conference will be the same mix of high-quality and informative workshops and seminars, featuring colleagues presenting the latest sector research and sharing good practice experiences.

Each day, the conference will feature at least one plenary keynote presentation followed by a selection of parallel paper presentations and workshops sessions led by colleagues from across the post-graduate sector.

Keynote Sessions

The programme of Keynote Sessions activities is coloured GREEN.

Free Fringe Events

The programme of conference Free Fringe activities is coloured BLUE.

The International Conference on the Mental Health & Wellbeing of Postgraduate Researchers is organised in partnership with teams at the University of Portsmouth and the University of Sussex. The Chair and trustees of the UK Council for Graduate Education would like to thank both teams for giving their time, energy and expertise during the organisation of this conference.

Organising Committee

Professor Jane Creaton | University of Portsmouth

Jane Creaton is Professor of Higher Education and Associate Dean (Academic) in the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences at the University of Portsmouth. She led one of the Catalyst funded projects on postgraduate mental health and wellbeing and was on the organising committee for the First International Mental Health and Wellbeing Conference. She was awarded a National Teaching Fellowship in 2019 for her work on doctoral education and currently chairs the Vitae Working Group on Mental Health and Wellbeing.

Professor Jeremy Niven | University of Sussex

Professor Jeremy E. Niven is based at the School of Life Sciences, University of Sussex, where his research interests include the mental health and well-being of students at both the undergraduate and postgraduate levels. He led the U-DOC project on graduate student mental health and wellbeing, and currently leads the SITUATE project, which focuses on undergraduate mental health during key educational transitions. He is particularly interested in the impact of PhD study on mental health and wellbeing, and the relationship between graduate students and their PhD supervisors.

Katie Tyrell | University of Suffolk

Katie is a current PhD student investigating student use of digital technologies in their intimate relationships. She joined the University of Suffolk as a researcher in 2017 after graduating with a MSc in Mental Health Research with distinction from the University of Nottingham. Since joining the University of Suffolk, Katie has worked alongside local, national, and international organisations to investigate the impact of interventions and service delivery upon the welfare of people across the lifespan. Katie is a facilitator of the ECR group within SMARteN, an initiative funded by UK Research and Innovation, led by King's College London, focusing on Student Mental Health in Higher Education.

Miles Willey | University of Sussex

Miles joined HE in 2003, following a memorable but ultimately financially unrewarding career as bass player in top-40 miserabilist indie band 'Lowgold'. In 2011 he was appointed as the first Doctoral School Manager at the University of Brighton and in his 6 years Brighton secured it's first AHRC, EPSRC and ESRC Doctoral Training Partnerships. Beyond fantastic acronyms Brighton Doctoral College was cited by the QAA in 2014 as having a positive influence on all PGR metrics since inception. Miles jumped across the A27 in 2017 to join the University of Sussex and head up the Research Student Administration Office, expanding to include the Sussex Doctoral School in 2019. He was fortunate enough to oversee the final stages of the OFS PGR mental health project (U-Doc), the research outputs of which continue to inform Sussex mental health and wellbeing interventions.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Rosie Tressler

CEO — Student Minds

The University Mental Health Charter

Rosie is the CEO of Student Minds, the UK's student mental health charity. Student Minds develops innovative approaches to support healthy university communities, collaborates on research, and empowers students, university professionals and connected communities to create change. Rosie has been working on the issue of student wellbeing for several years. She became the charity's Chief Executive Officer in 2015, following a number of different roles at Student Minds managing volunteering, campaigns and university relationships, and she has been undertaking a Churchill Fellowship to explore preventative approaches to student mental health in Canada and Australia. Rosie is currently overseeing the Student Space programme, designed to provide additional support for students during the coronavirus pandemic.

TUESDAY. 09:05

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Hugh Kearns

iThinkWell & Flinders University

Enabling Mental Health for Postgraduate Researchers

Hugh Kearns is recognised internationally as a public speaker, educator and researcher. He regularly lectures at universities across the world including Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard, Berkeley and Stanford.

He works with researchers, research students and research supervisors to look at how they can be more effective. In particular he explores the psychology of high performers and how they sometimes self-sabotage themselves by over-commitment, perfectionism, procrastination and distraction. His latest book deals with the topic of the imposter syndrome which is very common with these groups.

Hugh lectures and researches at Flinders University, Adelaide, Australia and runs his own business, Thinkwell. He is widely recognised for his ability to take the latest research in psychology and education and apply it to high-performing people and groups. As a co-author with Maria Gardiner, he has published twelve books which are in high demand both in Australia and internationally. The most recent book is called 52 ways to stay well during your PhD, postdoc or research career.

Grace Gottlieb

Head of Research Policy — Univer-

Research Cultures Discussion Panel

Grace Gottlieb is Head of Research Policy at UCL, where she has worked for four years, with a focus on topics including R&D funding policy and transparency and reproducibility in research. In 2020, Grace was seconded to the Russell Group, where she developed a toolkit of practical steps to foster a positive research culture. Before joining UCL, Grace worked at the Medical Research Council and Royal College of Surgeons.

WEDNESDAY. 14:05

KEYNOTE PANEL MEMBER

Dr Diego Baptista

Diversity and Inclusion Policy Adviser on Research Culture — Wellcome Trust

Research Cultures Discussion Panel

Dr. Diego Baptista works between the Policy and Advocacy team and the Diversity and Inclusion team at Wellcome on our #ReimagineResearch campaign.

He has recently led on how to build incentives for positive research cultures in how Wellcome delivers its funding in our new schemes.

He has previously held a role at Wellcome in the Open Research team and holds a PhD in Biochemistry and Biophysics from Harvard University.

THURSDAY. 14:05

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Dr Nicola Byrom King's College London & SMaRteN

Impact of COVID-19 on Doctoral and Early Career Researchers

Dr Nicola Byrom is a senior lecturer in psychology at the Institute of Psychiatry, Psychology and Neurosciences at KCL. Her research focuses on university student mental health. With a particular interest in peer support, informal networks of support and settings-based approaches to improving public mental health. She is currently directing SMaRteN, the UKRI funded Student Mental Health Research Network.

Nicola's research here is inspired by her personal experiences and her work in the charity sector. She founded the student mental health charity, Student Minds, in 2009 with the ambition for all students to feel confident talking about mental health. She has worked to build and support better formal and informal networks of peer support to normalise conversations around mental health.
